"No nation is strong enough to concede to, any part of its people the right to nullify its laws."

It is an ominous thing that the nation of America has begun its second century by casting out the manuscript of equal rights to be trodden under the feet of lawless men. From speech of Hon. J. P. DOLLIVER of Iowa, on the Federal Election Bill.

profitable union meetings were held in Norfolk, Portsmouth, Suffolk, Newport News and rural districts. I did not remain in towns and cities all of the time but visited as many country lodges as possible, held district meetings and there found to our satisfaction, some of the noblest Romans of them all, who believe in finding a way or making it.

Desiring to be better informed regarding the Insurance Department, I suggested a call of the committee, which the President issued and on July 24th the Committee had a meeting. I was present and am now prepared to say that this department is living, rapidly growing, and is a great refuge for every Samaritan and are simply robbing themselves and families of a much needed legacy.

In conclusion, Tide Water is alive in the Samaritan cause. The order is rapidly growing. I have appointed as Deputies in that section, live, honest and influential men, to keep the ball rolling. They are hustlers and will win, as only hustlers can win in such times as these.

Your obedient servant for the good of the Order, ROBERT KEISER, Grand Chief, I. O. of G. S. & D. S., State of Va. Samaritans do your duty.

BOSTON LETTER.

Rev. Francis J. Grimke, D. D., of Washington, addressed a large congregation at the Twelfth Baptist Church, on the "Past, Present and possible conditional Future." The address was quite a lengthy one and seemed to have worried the patience of some of the congregation judging by the number that left before the close of the address.

Rev. Mr. Smith, a missionary in Haiti for the past eight years, addressed a large congregation at Charles St. A. M. E. Church, on the condition of the people in that country.

Rev. P. Smith, administered the Lord's Supper at St. P. B. Church, Joy Street, to quite a large gathering. As this church is undergoing repair, the vestry had to be used. The work that is now in progress will cost about $1,500. The congregation has subscribed already about one third of that amount.

Messrs. R. J. Wilder and S. N. Spottedwood have returned to the city, after having had a pleasant time at several of the summer resorts, and resumed their duties at the Hotel Brunswick.

A meeting of colored musicians was called by Leonard Y. Wright, Sunday August 3, 1890, for the purpose of organizing a band to be known as Wright's Brass Band. These men have done considerable business in the past under that name, but have never been regularly organized before. From the above data, the band will be a permanent organization. The colored people of Boston are to be congratulated on the enterprise of Mr. Wright, and should show their appreciation thereof when opportunity offers.

Preparations are being made to entertain the visitors that will be here during the G. A. R. Reunion. A grand time is expected.
